An emblem of transformation, rendered in material and form

The Cicada Coffee Table is an artful fusion of material contrast, sculptural craftsmanship, and symbolic meaning. Its top is crafted from aged wood, available in an aged finish as shown, celebrating the passage of time and the beauty of renewal. Rich with character and depth, the wood showcases a distinctive patina that evokes a sense of history while complementing the table's contemporary form.

At either end of the table, a cast cicada motif emerges as both ornament and structure, seamlessly integrated within a textured frame that forms the legs. Rich in detail and tactile depth, these sculptural elements invite closer inspection, revealing a layered interplay of texture, shadow, and form.

Long revered as a symbol of transformation, resilience, and rebirth, the cicada serves as the conceptual anchor of the design. Its presence infuses the piece with narrative depth, while the aged wood reinforces themes of evolution and endurance, creating a meaningful connection between material and motif.

Balancing artistry with function, the Cicada Coffee Table is conceived as a conversation piece—grounded yet expressive, sophisticated yet distinctive. Equally at home in residential, hospitality, or gallery-inspired interiors, it stands as a quiet yet powerful statement, exploring the enduring dialogue between nature, craftsmanship, and design.
