

Welcome Our New Cardiologist, Andrew Sherman, D.O.

We are thrilled to welcome Dr. Sherman to the Pulse Cardiology team!

Dr. Andrew Sherman has advanced training in cardiovascular imaging, including echocardiography, nuclear cardiology and cardiac CT. He earned his undergraduate degree from the University of Michigan before completing his medical degree at Michigan State University College of Osteopathic Medicine. He completed his Internal Medicine residency at Beaumont Hospital and went on to complete his Cardiology fellowship at Henry Ford Providence Hospital.

Dr. Sherman focuses on prevention, patient education and long-term heart health. He believes that the best outcomes are achieved through collaborative relationships, therefore committed to helping patients understand their conditions and empowering them to take an active role in their care.

Outside of work, Dr. Sherman enjoys spending time with his family, golfing and maintaining an active lifestyle.

Please join us in giving him a warm welcome to the Pulse Cardiology family—we're excited to have him on board!

Dr. Sherman is now accepting new patients
