Capturing how it truly felt

Effortless wedding photography in Sydney and surrounding areas, focused on natural moments and understated elegance.

I'm a Sydney wedding photographer with a documentary eye and a calm, considered approach. My background in journalism taught me to observe, wait for the moment, and tell stories honestly.

My approach is calm and unobtrusive, with direction only when it's helpful. You won't feel directed all day, just gently guided when it helps.

Every image is composed with feeling, light and atmosphere, so your gallery feels natural, emotional and timeless.

You won't spend your day being arranged. I'd rather you were somewhere in the middle of your own wedding while I work around the edges of it.

WHAT I'M LIKE ON THE DAY

Early, calm, and dressed to disappear.

No group-shot sergeant routine. No "everybody say cheese", ever.

Twenty minutes of portraits is plenty. You'll get them back to your own party.

Yes, I cry at the speeches. Professionally, and from behind a camera.

Two ways to do this

Both cover the full day as it naturally unfolds, morning through evening. The only real question is whether you want the day in motion as well as in stills.
